

Grading Rubric

Everything you submit will be graded on a scale of “Excellent”, “Satisfactory”, or “Unsatisfactory”. What do each of these mean for the 7 categories for this class? Below are the general rubrics I will use. I reserve the right to modify the rubric, but not retroactively. Last edited: September 10.

Homework

Excellent: All problems are attempted. Errors are generally small arithmetic issues, or small conceptual problems on new content.

Satisfactory: Just about all problems are attempted. Many errors are small with a few conceptual misunderstandings, primarily on new content.

Unsatisfactory: Several problems are missing or many larger errors are made, particularly on content that has already been on prior homework.

Preclass Reading

Excellent: All questions are answered. High quality questions about the reading are asked.

Satisfactory: Many questions are answered. Standard level questions are asked.

Unsatisfactory: Questions are missing answers and the questions asked are low quality.

Assessments

Problems will be graded for points and then an average will be computed.

Excellent: 90% or higher

Satisfactory: 70% or higher

Unsatisfactory: means less than 70%

Final Exam

More to come.

Worksheets

Excellent: The group worked steadily in class and had thoughtful conversations and wrote careful answers to the questions. Everyone in the group contributed to the conversation and discussions.

Satisfactory: Worked steadily in class but one person dominated the conversation, or the answers to the questions were short or incomplete.

Unsatisfactory: Was not in class or did not work with your group. Solutions are minimal.

Reflections

Participation

Excellent: Answered questions when called on, regularly attended class, worked with your partner diligently. Additional consideration for students who attend office hours or TA hours.

Satisfactory: Answered questions when called on, attended class quite a lot but missed multiple classes or was frequently late, sometimes didn't work well with your partner.

Unsatisfactory: Did not have anything to say when called on regularly, regularly missed classes, or did not work well with multiple partners.
